DETAILED ACTION

Applicants' arguments, filed 9/23/04, have been fully considered but they are not deemed to be persuasive. Rejections and/or objections not reiterated from previous office actions are hereby withdrawn. The following rejections and/or objections are either reiterated or newly applied. They constitute the complete set presently being applied to the instant application.

PRIOR ART

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1, 4, 7, and 8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) and (e)(2) as being clearly anticipated by Tawashi (P/N 5,648,101).

This rejection is maintained and reiterated from the previous office action, mailed 6/29/04. Applicant argues that this rejection is based on the transient nature of the NO molecule. In response this is acknowledged as being supportive of the concept that an NO delivery system is recognized in the reference as being transient due to NO instability thus limiting the NO delivery treatment effects to times which are short after such NO delivery. It is also acknowledged that the osmotic pump delivery disclosure in the reference is cited as occurring over time periods such as one week or 4 weeks. Applicant has characterized such time periods as being sustained or persistent release of NO. In response applicant has not pointed to any definition of NO release time period which limits the instant claims regarding what is meant by transient. Applicant also admits that the osmotic pump delivery is cited in the reference for defined time periods of one or 4 weeks. Such time periods are transient due to being limited in length and thus still anticipates the instantly claimed invention. Applicant further argues that claim 4 is limited to little or no exposure outside of the local area of administration of a nitric oxide synthase-3 regulating agent and that the osmotic pump of the reference delivers systemically rather than locally. In response the local, that is, in situ, description of the osmotic pump delivery cited in the reference in Example A combined with the recognition of the short half life of NO supports this rejection that the reference appreciates local delivery of NO. Circulation to other parts of the body such as the argued "big toe" is not a persuasive argument due to the recognized rapid NO degradation well before arriving at "the big toe" when local blood brain barrier treatment is performed at great distance from said "big toe".

Claims 9-12, 14, and 15 are allowable.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicants are reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
